Project Information (EN)

Smiling is one of the most common social reflexes of our time, a communication tool for expressing happiness. But a complexity of emotions lies behind this friendly gesture. By exploring femininity through form and material, I want to connect generations of women sharing the same universal experience of being perceived by the 'male gaze'. Reclaiming the power over our bodies, our behaviour and our sensuality without being judged. Men passing by telling unknown women to smile. Contributing to centuries of expectations imposed upon the female body. These pieces tell the real stories that can be found behind a seemingly simple smile. Finding the right balance between Torture, Comfort and Beauty. :)
