To make a Chair

Hosted by: Athanasios Paspaliaris

Project Information (EN)

Drawn without any guidance and without any context rather than just “to draw a chair”.

My attempt is to create 3d real size models referring to the sketches as design objects with two purposes. First to narrate the story that is told by the child with this creation so the viewer can see the child in the chair and the infinite creativity that brinks, and the second purpose is to narrate the story of me as an artist/designer that came from creating for pleasure -as a child- to a complicated system and the struggles of figuring costs, aesthetics, advertising, purposes, networks and many more parameters in order to comply -or not- with the object fetishism that is dominating, influencing and maybe killing our creativity and shaping our design practises... Alongside the chairs that will be showed, with the original description by the children, I will create through the week one final chair which will be done based on a sketch made by a child visiting the exhibition.
