

Calm in crisis

of activism and care

Calm in crisis

Hosted by: Marla Gaiser

Project Information (EN)

As the most global crisis, climate change requires all kinds of activism. The climate activism that goes with it cause motivation, action but also stress for many people who are in touch with the issue. Within one's own engagement, one finds oneself facing a seemingly endless mountain of work. On the other hand, climate change itself triggers fears for the future, sadness and anger, especially among people of the younger generation. The various emotions can paralyse, but also release energies that are bundled into protest actions and demonstrations. The objects in the CALM IN CRISIS series communicate scenarios of climate activism in different ways. In different contexts, the objects can be used as recreational tools, in a climate demonstration or to develop new forms of protest. In five different objects, situations of climate activism are visualised and made tangible. The individual objects convey different feelings that can be experienced in relation to the climate crisis. Making the importance of climate activism visible is an essential part of CALM IN CRISIS, which aims to bring action to the foreground and counteract powerlessness.

Image List

Filename	Caption	Credit
img-2322-klein_1696445715.jpg	Head out of the Sand img-2021-klein_1696445701.jpg	Memory of the done img-2436-klein_1696445900.jpg	Write and Invite img-2374-klein_1696445754.jpg	One for three img-2484-klein_1696445820.jpg	Take a breath, give a scream

The images above are included in the ZIP under /images.