Project Information (EN)

Description

Based on a participatory trajectory with three queer designers/artists from the designer's closest queer community, the way in which they appeal to their identity within their creative practice is examined and made tangible. This project sees design as a tool to discuss intangible themes such as the broader conversation about identity and sees the act of design as a language that can facilitate the discussion of difficult themes such as queerness. Conversations about, among other things, group feeling, gender and representation are conducted on the basis of design decisions regarding typology, colour, material and context of use. By documenting the decisions within these conversations and the entire design process in a publication, this knowledge about the personal approach of these participants in relation to identity is made tangible and shareable.

Projectinformatie (NL)

Beschrijving

Aan de hand van een participatief traject met drie queer ontwerpers/kunstenaars uit de naaste queer gemeenschap van de ontwerper wordt de manier waarop zij binnen hun creatieve praktijk beroep doen op hun identiteit onderzocht en tastbaar gemaakt. Dit project ziet design als een tool om ontastbare thema's zoals de bredere conversatie over identiteit bespreekbaar te maken en ziet de daad van het ontwerpen als een taal die het bespreken van moeilijke thema's zoals queerness kan faciliteren. Conversaties over onder andere groepsgevoel, gender en representatie worden gevoerd aan de hand van ontwerpbeslissingen rond typologie, kleur, materiaal en gebruikscontext.
